

Write the letters E – F – G on the frets of the graphics that do not have letters on them.

The image displays three vertical guitar fretboard diagrams, each consisting of a thick vertical line on the left representing the neck and four vertical lines representing frets. The frets are divided into six horizontal spaces. The first diagram on the left has the letters 'E', 'F', and 'G' written vertically on the right side, corresponding to the top three fret spaces. The second and third diagrams are identical to the first but are currently blank, intended for the student to write the letters E, F, and G on the appropriate frets.
